

There comes the refreshing news from Washington, that Senator Edmunds will fight the river and harbor grab "tooth and nail."

The New York Tribune says that the man in the Wisconsin Legislature who introduced the bill to compel women to vote on the suffrage questions, wants to get even with his wife. Will Senator Burrows rise and explain this point?

The rumor is afloat in New York circles that Mr. John T. Raymond, the famous comedian, and well-known as Colonel Sellers of the American stage, is to be married to a member of his company, Miss Carlant. Mr. Raymond recently procured a divorce from his first wife.

A confession has come at last from the New York World, the most unrelenting Democratic paper in the East, that the "Democratic majority in the House of Representatives, during its six years of power, has done nothing for financial reform, tariff reform, tax reform or civil service reform." This has been the Republican position all along, and now the Democratic papers are beginning to see that the Republican papers were right.

The Janesville Gazette says that the table compiled by Mr. A. O. Wright, secretary of the State board of charities and reforms, on the liquor traffic in Wisconsin, is incorrect. It gives the total number of saloons as 3,951, while in 1879 there were 4,323 saloons. Licensed. Mr. Wright reports only 35 places licensed to sell liquors in Janesville, while the correct number is 41.

The Republican is in error in quoting from the Gazette. Mr. Wright, in compiling his table, gave the number of saloons in Rock county as 23, whereas the number in the county is above 100, and in Janesville, 41.

There is a spreading belief in this State that our constitution has, to a certain extent, outlived its usefulness, and that a convention should be called for the purpose of revising it. Mr. Pratt, of this county, has responded to public sentiment in this direction by offering a resolution in the Assembly authorizing the appointment of a select committee of five to take into consideration the propriety of calling a convention for the purpose of revising the constitution. The resolution is a timely one, but there are doubts as to its adoption.

The Washington correspondent of the Intra-Ocean in speaking of the Dakota judgeship says: "It is believed the Wisconsin delegation will not recommend the re-appointment of Judge Barnes, but it is understood they have agreed to present the name of S. A. Hudson, of Janesville, Wis., for the place. Hudson is said to be a fine lawyer, with a judicial mind, not much given to politics, who will make an excellent judge. As this appointment, however, may not be made until the next administration, it is about as uncertain to predict what will be the ultimate decision as to predict a complete cabinet."

Those who know nothing about the municipal court bill have charged that it was gotten up in a dark corner, that the people do not want the bill, and that the prominent lawyers in the city are opposed to it. Such talk as this comes of ignorance and prejudice. The municipal bill which is now before the Legislature was not drawn in any "dark corner," and more than that, it is endorsed by the best lawyers in the city, and by every member of the Legislature from Rock county. It creates a new court and confers upon it exclusive jurisdiction in criminal cases arising in the city of Janesville; the jurisdiction of justices of the peace in cases arising in the county; jurisdiction of all appeal cases from justices of the peace in the county, and jurisdiction in all cases commenced by information, except murder. Also original jurisdiction to hear and determine cases cognizable before a justice of the peace when the amount involved does not exceed $500. The bill has been drawn with great care and is as near perfect as a new bill can be. If the people will select a first class lawyer for judge—surrounding the court with that judicial dignity and honor that are so necessary in a court of justice—there is no doubt that it will be a credit to the county and reduce the cost of litigation to the county.

WISCONSIN AND THE CABINET.
The Chicago Journal of last Saturday contained an editorial on "Wisconsin and the Cabinet," which gives the fairest and the most substantial reasons why ex-Senator Howe should not be appointed to a cabinet position. The first position taken by the Journal is this:

If General Garfield wishes to recognize the great obligation which is under to the Wisconsin delegation in the Chicago convention for starting the "boom" in favor of his nomination, let him do it by the appointment of a man to a seat in his cabinet who would give general satisfaction to the Republicans of that stalwart State. The selection of ex-Senator T. O. Howe as Attorney General, or for any other position, would not meet the approbation of a majority of the people, and for these reasons: He was an original and unrepentant and persistent third-term, and it is well known that General Grant could only muster one delegate from that State (Colonel Bryant), so that the Republican sentiment of the State was set like flint against that heresy. Mr. Howe was not a delegate in that convention and would have voted against Garfield if he had been, but benighted Grant's defeat for the nomination in the only speech he made during the campaign, which was an insult to a majority of the convention, to the candidates nominated, and to the Wisconsin delegation in particular, which took the initiative in starting the tidal wave for Garfield. General Garfield should not select a man for a cabinet officer who is still suffering from the effects of the third-term colic, and ex-Senator Howe has not yet recovered from that violent attack.

The Journal then compliments Judge Cassoday as follows:
If General Garfield wishes to signify his obligation to that State, for the prominent part its delegation played in the Republican national convention, let him go straight at the mark and bestow his favors upon Judge John B. Cassoday, now of the supreme court, who was chairman of that delegation, and did more than any other one in holding it firm against third-termism. He is the peer of any man in the State, intellectually and professionally, and it is not identified with any clique or disturbing faction. Or let him take the man, Colonel Keyes, who was unanimously recommended to him by the 103 Republican members of the Legislature.

The kind and well-deserved remarks of the Journal in regard to Judge Cassoday are appreciated, but under no circumstances would he accept a cabinet position. His desire is to remain on the Supreme Bench and as he will be re-elected in the spring to the place he now holds, receiving the support of the bench and the bar and the people generally, irrespective of party, he would under no circumstances, consent to his name being used in connection with a cabinet appointment. If a Wisconsin man can be appointed, let Colonel Keyes be the man. He is superior to Mr. Howe in executive ability, and can not be as easily influenced or controlled by rings and Mr. Howe. Beside that he has done the party far more valuable service than the ex-Senator ever did, and is therefore more entitled to public recognition.

The Journal endorses Mr. Howe's integrity and ability in a manner which will administer a little comfort to the friends of the ex-Senator. It says: "As to Mr. Howe, he is a man of acknowledged high character and ability, and has a clean public record, of which he has just reason to be proud; but his appointment at this time would be unpopular in Wisconsin, for the reason above stated."

A CORRESPONDENT writes to the Detroit Free Press: Some years ago we were operating a leather store in a small town in Wisconsin, and it was part of our business to buy hides for shipment East. The hide-house was situated in rear of the lot and a wheelbarrow was employed to convey them. This dog, which we named Watch, part shepherd and Newfoundland, always carried with the greatest delight the key, which was attached to a piece of shingle by a string, to the hide-house. One day as Watch pranced gaily down to the hide-house with the key in his mouth he met a strange dog. The two commenced to snarl at each other, and Watch closed his teeth so tightly into the piece of shingle that he broke it in two and lost one piece and key. When we got to the hide-house he came up and had only the piece in his mouth. "Watch," said I, "this won't unlock the door; where is the key?" Watch looked up, and when the words were repeated and the door shaken, to show that it could not be opened, he started off. In a short time he returned with the other piece of the shingle. He was again shown the two pieces, put together this time, and made to understand that the key was yet missing. It was getting late and we followed him. He stood a moment, as if reflecting where he was at the time he met the dog, and scenting up his tracks, found the key and brought it to us dangling from the string between his teeth. It seems by this that he certainly understood what we said to him about the lost key.

A BRASS pulpit has recently been completed in Philadelphia for St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church, Troy, N. Y. It will be erected as a memorial by William Stone Smith, a very wealthy gentleman of that city, to his deceased wife. The pulpit is about seven feet high by three feet square, and is made entirely of polished brass, except the floor, treads and handrail, which are of solid mahogany. The ornamentation consists of rosettes, intersected with twisted rods, after the style of 1750. The eight posts or columns are intersected at given spaces with square grooved blocks, and the balusters are round and twisted in the center. There is a scalloped apron below the floor, handsomely ornamented, which greatly adds to the appearance of the pulpit. The whole is heavily braced and counterbraced, and is exceedingly strong and massive, though it has a light and graceful appearance. The reading desk is of brass, and will be covered inside with scarlet velvet. There are four small gas-jets, and the light will be hidden by a nickel-plated reflector from the audience and the speaker. This is not the least ingenious part of this beautiful piece of art. It is inscribed in old English letters, cathedral style, in colors: "In Memoriam. Fannie Barrett Smith. From Faith unto Fruition. March 2, 1880." The cost of the memorial to Mr. Smith, which includes handsome marble steps, alcoves, etc., will be ten thousand dollars.—N. Y. Tribune.

A NEGRO juggler recently came to grief in England. He was exhibiting his skill to an admiring crowd on a stand in the market place at Leighton Buzzard, flicking red-hot iron, bending burning poker with his naked foot, burning tow in his mouth, and the like. At last he filled his mouth with benzoline, saying that he would burn it as he allowed it to escape. He had no sooner applied a lighted match to his lips than the whole mouthful of spirit took fire, and before it was consumed the man was burned in a frightful manner, the blazing spirit running all over his face, neck and chest, as he dashed from his stand and raced about like a madman, tearing his clothing from him and howling in most intense agony. A portion of the spirit was swallowed, and the inside of his mouth was also terribly burned. He was taken into a chemist's shop and oils were administered and applied; but afterward, in agonizing frenzy, he escaped a state almost of nudity from a lodging house, and was captured by the police and taken to the workhouse infirmary in a dreadful condition.

INAUGURATION DAY.

Dissatisfaction with General Sherman's Order Relating to the Management of Troops.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The discussion over General Sherman's order governing the dispositions and the marching of the troops on inauguration day has become very lively. To-day he publishes an explanation of it, but it does away with none of the objections which have been raised. With all explanations the situation remains as follows: Of the four divisions into which the 20,000 troops expected have been divided, only that one containing the regulars will see the inauguration at all. This regular division is to escort the President-elect from the White House to the capitol, to attend at east front during the exercises there, and then to escort the Presidential party back to the White House. Meantime, General Hartman's division, 6,000 strong, which is stationed next nearest after the regulars, is to be placed, in the words of General Sherman's order, around and outside the square on the east side of the capitol. The other two divisions are to be formed in line, one along the north side and the other along the south side of Pennsylvania avenue, next to the curbstone, to keep the avenue clear for the passing and repassing of the regulars. Except when these are marching by, these long lines of volunteers are at liberty, by the wording of General Sherman's order, to stack arms and break ranks. Thus one division of visiting soldiers is to be posted around and outside the capitol grounds, and two are to be used to keep Pennsylvania avenue clear for the regulars, and not a man of the three divisions will be where he can have a fair view of the inaugural ceremonies, and only in one of these will there be even a distant view for the other two. Every man in these divisions, as well as stay home, so far as seeing the ceremonies of the inauguration at the east portico of the capitol. One of these divisions—namely, that one around the capitol grounds—will not see the President either on his way to the capitol or his return to the White House. The two divisions along the avenue, while on police duty there, will see him twice. After the regulars have escorted him back to the Executive Mansion then all the volunteers are to march in review past the President. If they are good soldiers they will all be looking to the front, and not behind, during the march by all turning their heads to look at him. Gen. Sherman's explanation affords no reason for not giving the visiting troops a chance to see the inaugural ceremonies at the east front, except that the space east of the capitol will only hold 4,000 men—the strength of the division, containing his regulars—without crowding out the people who come to see the ceremony.

CHICAGO GOSSIP.
From our Regular Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—Real estate, during the past two months, has advanced fully thirty per cent in this city and its best suburbs. On the South side in the business district, it is booming. Money is plenty and finds ready investment. In one instance $440,000 was paid last week for certain property that could not be sold last summer for $310,000 on time. This was a bona fide sale, as $20,000 was paid in cash, and a trust deed for the balance at 7 per cent payable semi-annually. Lots in prominent suburban towns, near by, which were sold for $100 in 1879, on time, now brings $200 in cash very readily. Property just inside the limits in good locations, has lately been sold for $700 cash, that was offered for $500 last June on time. A Canadian gentleman purchased 300 lots on last Thursday for $60,000 cash, outside the city limits. This same property was sold in 1877 on time for $10,000.

Hogs and cattle are arriving in large quantities, owing to the recent advance in prices. First class animals are much sought after, and the demand for such is great.

The packing houses of all kinds are running full force, and paying good wages. One firm shipped by rail last week, 500 tons of cooked canned meats to foreign ports. Our criminal courts are very busy in disposing of the numerous cases on hand. The case of Fred Holden is set for to-day. It may again be continued. He has been confined now over a year, but with prospects of a release very soon. L. MOUAT.

Finally he became unconscious, and fell to the ground. The snake immediately coiled himself about the body, but the arrival of Mr. Skell's son saved his life. The reptile was shot, but Skell lies at home in a very critical condition.

NATIONAL GUARD.
The Formation of the Second Battalion—Lieutenant Colonel Bouck.
MADISON, Feb. 19.—His Excellency Governor William E. Smith to-day issued the following order for the organization of the Second Battalion of the Wisconsin National Guard:
The Second Battalion Wisconsin National Guard is hereby formed, and the following companies assigned thereto—viz.: Bay City Light Guard, Oshkosh Guards, Evergreen City Guards, Oshkosh Rifles, Fond du Lac Guards. Gabriel Bouck, of Oshkosh, is appointed lieutenant colonel; C. A. Born, of Sheboygan, major; John Kenneally, of Fond du Lac, quartermaster; and F. J. Wilkie, of Oshkosh, surgeon of this battalion, and they will be obeyed and respected accordingly. The commanding officers of the companies above named will immediately report by letter to Lieutenant-Colonel Bouck for orders and instructions.

TRICHINE.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 20.—Charles Ibach, son of Superintendent Ibach, of the State Institution for Feeble Minded Children, is lying fatally ill in this city with trichinosis, the first case of the kind in this section since 1875. Mr. Ibach was employed as weighmaster at one of the pork houses, and when unusually busy was in the habit of cooking a bit of pork over the fire and eating it instead of going home for dinner. The pork was seldom more than heated through, and the physicians rely on this fact to substantiate their diagnosis of trichinosis. A perplexing symptom, however, is the swelling of muscles and the formation of cold abscesses. The suffering of the man is terrible.

ASSASSINATED.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 20.—A dispatch from Dallas, Tex., says that A. K. Strother, of Ennis, was assassinated at 10 o'clock last night. Strother was a wealthy stock-dealer, and in his pockets were found a check for $2,000 and a large amount in currency. There is no clue to the assassin, but the origin of the affair is said to be an old feud between the murdered man and some stock men living in the vicinity of his ranch.

A STRIKE.

MILWAUKEE, February 20.—The ship-carpenters and caulkers in the yards of the city propose to strike for an increase of wages to-morrow. An additional 50 cents is demanded. The men get $2.50 now, and will insist upon $3 per day. The strike was decided upon at a meeting this afternoon. There are about 300 men. The prosperity of the business at this time gives the strikers encouragement.

BURGLAR CAPTURED.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 20.—Gustav Withe, a burglar, was captured here this afternoon, having several hundred dollars worth of property in his possession. Three or four citizens here have identified valuable since his arrest. He has been operating here and at Chicago, and had a thousand mile ticket on the St. Paul railway.

WHEAT PROSPECTS.

MILWAUKEE, February 20.—Inquiry among members of the Walworth county agricultural society shows that in fifteen towns the prospects of the winter wheat crop are regarded as favorable. The acreage there, as throughout Wisconsin, is 20 per cent greater than that of last year.

SUICIDAL.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 20.—Charles Buotou, a tailor aged 68 years, residing on Walnut street, suicided to-day. He used a navy revolver, and almost blew off the top of his head.

NEVER work with dull tools, for they require too great an outlay of strength, both of man and beast.

BURNE applied to the roots of grape vines affected by the grapes rotting, has been found to completely eradicate the rot.

A SUBSCRIBER hands in the following, as a sure cure for chicken cholera: Boil the root of the Burdock to a syrup. Mix with meal and feed to the fowls.

It is said that guinea-fowls will keep in good health if fed on garden stock. They will not scratch like other fowls, or harm the most delicate plants.

SPICED PLUMS.—Four pounds brown sugar, seven pounds plums, one pint each vinegar, one nutmeg grated, one tablespoonful each of cinnamon, cloves, allspice. Boil all slowly two hours.

APPLE FLOAT.—Prepare twelve apples for sauce; when cold add the whites of two eggs well beaten, then beat the whole till stiff. Make a soft custard with the yolks of the two eggs and put the apple mixture on the custard.

TO CLEAN STEEL ORNAMENTS.—To clean steel ornaments, dip a small brush into some paraffin oil and then into some emery powder—such as is used in the knife-machines—and well brush the ornaments, and all the rust will soon come off; polish with a dry leather and duster.

CREAM TARTLETS.—Make a short paste with one white and three yolks of eggs, one ounce of sugar, one ounce of butter, a pinch of salt and flour, work it lightly, roll it out to the thickness of a quarter of an inch. Line some patty pans with it, fill them with uncooked rice to keep their shape, and bake them in a moderate oven till done. Remove the rice, and fill the tartlets with jam, or with stewed fruit, and on the top put a heaped spoonful of whipped cream.

VERMIN ON BIRDS.—Keep the perches and wire portion of the cages clean by frequently washing with a weak soda made with carbolic soap and warm water. Apply with a cloth. Dry wire and perches thoroughly after each washing. Then dress by means of a feather both perches and wire with a light coating of the best table sweet oil. Place inside of the cage in the top or peak a small piece of loose cotton batting. Fasten the cotton in place with thread or string and change daily. This treatment perseveringly executed will give favorable results.

The administration of medicines through the nose of a horse or other animal, is a crude and dangerous practice, too often resorted to by quacks and ignorant persons, as the fluid, by being given thus in a continuous stream, will run down into the windpipe and enter the lungs instead of the stomach. By pouring medicines through the nose in large quantities, the horse cannot perform the act of breathing without at the same time allowing the fluid to enter the lungs. If, besides, the fluid contained undissolved or irritating substances, the danger would be increased.—National Live Stock Journal.

If horses paw in the stable take a light chain, fasten it above the knee, let it hang loose, just so it will not touch the floor. If horses kick in the stable, fasten the chain on the hind leg, same way. They will keep quiet while the chain is on, and there is no danger of hurting them. To cure a halter breaker take a halter rope a little over twice the length of the horse; make a loop in the middle of the rope (so it can not slip), pass the horses tail through it, then pass the ends of the rope through the rings of the halter, and hitch the ends. When he tries to pull, the rope will slip through the rings and all the strain comes on his tail.

ON THE SHORE.

Down on the golden sand,
With careless feet,
Through summer hours they stand—
The children sweet.
Gently, as if at play,
The green, gray waves
Make music in the bay
And kiss the caves.

Little children know
Upon the shore
How in mid sea, winds blow
And billows roar;

How ships meet sad mischance,
And sailors' lives are lost;
This blessed ignorance
Is childhood's crown.

Beside another sea
These children stand,
From all its foam still free,
On childhood's land.

O mighty sea of Life,
O perilous tides,
Where storms are always rife
And death abides!

Full softly on the land
These children linger,
Building its domes of sand
With rosy fingers;

For children should not hear
Your raging wild,
Nor see—your eyes are clear—
Your tide defied.

Nor mark, with hearts that bleed,
How souls go down;
This ignorance indeed
Is childhood's crown.

Formation of Soils.

VEGETATION and growth are very complex processes, involving the action of the whole material universe. In vegetation the sun acts by its light and heat and chemical rays; the atmosphere by its own elements and by the carbonic acid contained in it; the water that pervades the atmosphere, or that is furnished in various other ways, electricity, and the earth, by furnishing the mineral elements that are essential to each kind of vegetation.

There is thus a system of laws that underlies all agriculture. The elements taken from other sources than the earth—that is, from the atmosphere, the water, and the heat and the light of the sun—do not exhaust the sources of the elements, and cannot be restored to them by human effort, but are restored by the stated and constant action of the system. Another fundamental fact is that the elements taken from the soil by crops do by degrees exhaust it, and must be replaced, or else the soil will become barren. This is the most important fact in agriculture. In some instances the abstracted elements are restored by natural processes, as by the overflow of the Nile in Egypt, and of the Ganges in India, and of other similar cases; but as a rule they must be restored by artificial means.

If a process of abstraction goes on for a length of time varying in different cases, the soil becomes barren for all plants which demand the elements taken away. By a process of this kind the larger part of the world could be rendered barren, as large portions have been, so that a universal famine would ensue. Hence the most pressing problem of agriculture in all ages has been to restore to the soil the elements thus removed. At this point comes in another great fact. All the products of the soil that are eaten and digested, have, after this digestion, the identical elements taken from the soil, and form an effectual manure, which will restore and perpetuate its fertility. What is called manure is simply anything that restores to the soil the abstracted essential food of plants by which they live, grow and become fruitful.

The results of digestion are the most obvious means of effecting this, and as such have been used in all ages. But the same elements if procured from other sources will produce the same results, so that a wide field is open for the manufacture of manures.

In view of these facts certain things are evident: 1. That an understanding of what each plant takes from the soil is always desirable, and to a scientific culture of any plant or tree absolutely essential. 2. It is desirable to know that the efficacy of manure depends on the fact that it gives to the soil the elements which have been taken from it, or in which it was originally deficient, but which are essential to the cultivation of plants or trees. 3. That it should be a principle of National policy to discourage, and if possible to prevent the exhaustion of the National domain or any part of it by repeated drafts on the earth, the great bank of humanity, without any adequate deposits to make good the withdrawals. During the greater part of past ages there has not been a scientific understanding of these laws. The chemical components of plants and the earth have not been understood until this century. If manures have been used, but their composition and action have been imperfectly comprehended, and the component elements of plants and what they take from the soil have been even less understood.

Observation and experiment have taught what has been known as to manure, and tradition has handed down the rules on processes established by the usages of previous generations.

It is, moreover, very desirable to know what are constituent elements of every soil when it is first cultivated. Assuming that the constituent elements of all the plants to be raised are known, it can be seen if there is a deficiency of any requisite elements in the soil, or if any are in danger of being soon exhausted; or if any are not in a state to be used. This will decide what manures to use, when to use them, and how much to employ. The soils of the globe have been formed in past ages from the rocky strata of the earth, acted on and disintegrated by the air, by water, by heat and cold, and other chemical agents; the results of this disintegration have been deposited by rivers and floods, thus forming alluvial soils in low lands. In higher lands the character of the soil depends upon the constituent elements of the rocks which have been disintegrated. Thus in Gessen's "New Brunswick" we are told that from the disintegration of granite and syenite, siliceous, limo and magnesia, result. The soil from the rock contains much potash, and produces hard wood, such as beech, birch, maple, oak, ash and butternut. The soil of granite and syenite also produces these; but frequently, if the soil is deep and mixed with sand, white and red pine grow to a large size. In like manner all soils can be traced to their original sources, and their primary powers and adaptations known. As a general fact, alluvial soils are the most complete, and the most widely adapted, as containing a greater variety of the elements needed in the formation of different plants, and often a greater abundance of them.

In addition to such original elements of soil, a vegetable mold is added by the dissolution of leaves, grasses, trees and other vegetable products. In this, however, are found elements previously taken from the soil and the atmosphere. It is also important to know the degrees of heat and cold to which plants will be exposed, and the amount of water to be obtained from rains, brooks, rivers and irrigation, for these are things the cultivator is compelled to know through the action of the climate and the seasons.—Christian Union.

The success of the New York Training School for nurses has led to the foundation of similar institutions in other cities. In Brooklyn a training school has been opened in connection with the Brooklyn City Hospital, and will be managed according to the same system as the New York Bellevue Hospital School.

The Boston Commercial List of a recent date says: "Orders from the West and Northwest are coming along freely for so early in the season. The call for boots and shoes never was so urgent as at present, and manufacturers find it difficult to get goods off as fast as they are wanted."

A MAN out West turned States evidence and swore he was a member of a gang of thieves. By and by they found the roll of members, and accused the man of swearing falsely. "I was a member," said the man, "I was an honorable member!"

There is one matrimonial rule that can be depended upon as of universal application. A husband will never find any difficulty in footing his wife's bills, provided the wife is so put together that she is not ashamed to foot her husband's stockings.

Hair Dressing.

THE hair is dressed very simply this season, and close to the head, showing all its outlines. The voluminous puffs and chignons worn last year are entirely out of fashion, and very little false hair is used, except in natural-looking switches for enlarging the braids in which the back hair is arranged. Low coiffures are most in favor, though ladies who are short, or those with round faces, still wear the hair dressed high, though puffs and braids are not used by them. The only stylish high coiffure is formed by combing all the hair upward from the nape of the neck, then covering the top or crown of the head with a large soft knot, made by tying a switch in a loose, fluffy knot, and tucking the ends beneath out of sight. If the forehead is low, the front hair is then combed straight back and left plain; but if the forehead is too high, it is shaded by irregular Montague waves, or else by a short bang. Low coiffures are more generally becoming to the oval faces of American ladies. The popular chataine braids are still used quite low at the back, and these are now two loops, each plaited of three tresses, put straight and quite together down the middle of the back of the head; then each is curled around in a loop, which, when spread out, fills all the space between the ears. This is very easily arranged with false hair, but is more troublesome for those who have sufficient natural hair to form the braids. Large coils are worn again, and are placed very low down. These are not the small Greek knot, nor yet the plait rolled around, but are long thick tresses twisted carelessly, or else twisted in a thick rope coil. Besides the becoming Montague curls there are three ways of arranging the front hair; first, with the loose waves that look natural, and leave the parting of the hair visible; second, in the water waves that are made to lie flat on the forehead; and third, with the short bang cut off quite square at the corners. The natural-looking waves must not be fluffy, now that smooth hair is again in fashion. They are easily made by putting up the hair on two or four hair-pins, and wearing it so all night. The hair should be only slightly moistened, as when made very wet will be too much like crimped hair. Hair-dressers say they cut bangs for ladies of thirty years and under, precisely like those worn by children, though ladies should not allow them to grow as long as the bangs seen on children. A little bandoline is used on these straight bangs, and also on the water waves, and this is the only dressing now commended for the hair.

An occasional shampooing to keep the hair clean, and a great deal of brushing done in quick strokes, after each of which the hand is passed over the hair, will be found better than any nostrums for making the hair retain its natural luster. When a false front must be used by reason of baldness, or to give the natural hair time to grow, that with five water waves, made quite flat and showing no parting in the middle, is one of the best. Another false piece has large, deep, natural-looking waves covering the entire top of the head. Still another is a narrower band or tress of hair slightly waved and cut off in front to form some Montague locks. For the back hair, when there is very little natural hair, a long, full switch is arranged to form a crown braid quite far back, and each end is then turned up to make chataine loops. For this thick braid it is well to buy the crimped hair that has had the crimp "baked" in, so that it is permanent, as this is not so heavy as a straight switch.

Very young ladies wear the back hair fastened in a small knot quite low, in the fashion now called l'Anglaise. With the coiffure a la Vierge the front hair is in smooth bands drawn down behind the ears. For full-dress occasions a comb or a single flower placed low behind the left ear is sufficient ornament. With the small bonnets now worn on the back of the head, smooth bands, or else natural-looking waves, are best for the front hair, as these add nothing to the size of the head. The old fashion of twisting pearls in the coil of hair is revived by Parisiennes. The preference here is for thrusting a dagger of shell or of jet through the comb hair, or else wearing a narrow comb stuck in the side in a Spanish fashion. Side combs of shell are also used again. A pretty caprice with morning toilettes is that of wearing a tiny Japanese fan through the knot of hair in the way seen in pictures of Japanese women.

Natural flowers are used in the coiffure to match those now worn on the corsage. Artificial flowers are entirely abandoned for such purposes. The fancy to wear only a single large flower now the back of the head, instead of a cluster of smaller ones. The flower on the corsage is then chosen to match, and is worn on the left side of the neck, quick high and far back; if other flowers are used, they are stuck in the belt on the left side. Ladies who have gray hair do not conceal it with any disguise whatever, eschewing not only dyes, but lace head-dresses and caps, except the muslin caps worn in the morning. Children still wear bangs on the forehead, while the back hair is long and flowing. Larger girls wear Marguerite braids, or else braided loops, with either a bang or natural waves in front. The unclean practice of putting oil on the hair has been abandoned, and the natural oil of the hair is brought out by much brushing with a stiff brush; the shampooing keeps the scalp clean and prevents the accumulation of dandruff, which is said to be increased by the use of fine combs.—Harper's Bazar.

BRIEFLETS.

—Herbert's opening night.

—Miss Bird, of Madison, is in the city,

visiting Miss Ella Hutson.

—Prof. Severance's dancing school at Apollo hall to-morrow night.

—Whether we can weather any more bad weather or not is a query.

—C. I. Houston, of Fairfield, was a ciller at the Gazette office Saturday afternoon.

—The Rock County Agricultural Society is to hold its quarterly meeting in the Court house Saturday, March 5.

—Frank Smith, of M. C. Smith & Son,

has gone to Richland Center to look after the business interests of the firm

there.

—To-morrow is Washington's birthday.

The school children will be turned loose and all the banks closed, except the snowbanks.

—The Beloit Guards are to have a dance, next Friday evening, the same time set for the masquerade of the Janesville Guards.

—Horace Hubert and his company arrived this afternoon from Rockford,

where they have been playing to full houses for a week.

—Bennett & Sale's new office in the postoffice block is receiving its finishing touches, and to-morrow or next day the move will be made.

—Miss Hattie Calkins returned to her

Milwaukee home to-day. Her friend Miss

Dottie Watson, accompanied her, and will spend a week in that city.

—The cadet corps of the Janesville

Guards will have its drill to-morrow evening instead of Friday evening, this change being good for this week only.

—Mrs. Burr Robbins received last evening a telegram from her husband stating that he had been very ill in New York, but that he was now better and had started for home.

—Alex Curry, who was arrested last week, for stealing tools from the carpenters' chests in Myer's new block, has been discharged, the man Witte acknowledging that he stole them.

—St. Patrick's Society gave another of their social dancing parties at Young

America hall, one week from to-night.

Anderson's band will furnish the music.

Tickets, including supper, $1.

—John G. Hayner has purchased an interest in J. W. Nash's grocery store, and the new firm will be styled Nash &

Hayner. Mr. Nash's son, James N., has gone out of the business, and started for Texas where he will engage in the stock business.

—Main street, yesterday afternoon, was crowded with fast flying teams. A collision took place by which A. L. Burns was thrown from his cutter, and his horse

speeded away, but was quickly stopped.

The sleigh was somewhat injured, but no

further damage done.

—The many friends here of Mrs. B.

Belden will be pained to learn that while near Mapleton, Iowa, she met with a fall

one day last week, by which she suffered a fracture of the thigh. The extent of the injury is not known yet, beyond the statement that it is very serious.

—A slippery sidewalk in the First ward

this forenoon caused a serious accident to Mrs. Street, of Waukegan, mother of Attorney Street, whom she is visiting.

By the fall Mrs. Street suffered a fracture of the thigh bone, which may cripple

her always, though it is hoped not.

—Joseph Wagner, of Afton, who was arrested for larceny, and tried before

Justice Brooks Saturday, was acquitted.

The chief witness against him was the young man Banfield, whom Wagner had caused to be arrested and fined for an assault upon him a day or two before.

—Mr. Cannon is making extensive alterations in the ladies' and gents' dressing rooms of his hall, preparatory to the grand masquerade of the Guards next Friday evening. He is bound to have every arrangement as complete as possible for the comfort of the guests on that occasion.

—Old soldiers hereabouts will be interested in learning that a meeting of Wisconsin veterans now residing in Chicago,

was held Saturday evening at the Grand

Pacific hotel, at which about thirty were present. It was decided to hold an informal reunion at that hotel March 10,

at which Bishop Fallows and Colonel Johnson, of Beloit, were chosen as orators.

The roster of the Wisconsin veterans residing there shows over one hundred names.

—The Chicago Press Club last Saturday evening tendered a reception to the distinguished tragedian, Thomas W.

Keene. The enthusiasm which he has excited in Chicago shows that all that has been said of him is heartily endorsed

there, where he is greeted with packed houses every night. Janesville folk will have their chance to see and hear him

here at the Opera house on the evening of the 31 of March, and it will be a rich

treat indeed, and one which will cause

the house to be packed to its utmost.

—To-night Herbert's grand constellation opens at the Opera house its week's engagement here. The drama which is to be presented this evening, "Rosedale,

or The Rifle Ball," is one which will surely please, as handled by this excellent company, and as there is to be a change of programme every evening

those who want to see one of the best plays in their repertoire should surely be there. There has been a clamor here

for good shows and low prices, and now that one such has come, it should be greeted with a full house.

—The general admission to the gallery

for the Guards' masquerade, has been fixed at 25 cents. Tickets may be produced at E. V. Whiton & Co.'s drug store.

Dancing tickets will be sold at the door

only. Admission to the gallery will be from the Jackson street entrance. Those desiring costumes will please remember that Dupre will be at the Grand hotel on Thursday evening and all day Friday.

Madame Dupre herself will be in attendance to wait upon the ladies.

—The Young Men's Christian Association met, yesterday afternoon, in the parlors of the Baptist church, and had a very interesting service of song, which was largely attended. A liberal amount of congregational singing, led by a strong choir, and Mr. Kent with his cornet, was given, and a male quart sang

very sweetly a jubilee song "Swing low,

sweet chariot." The association will probably continue to hold their Sabbath afternoon meetings in the Baptist church parlors, the rooms having been offered to them at so low a rate, one dollar a Sunday, that the association in accepting the offer, passed a vote of thanks for the same. Mr. Cannon was also thanked by a unanimous vote for his generosity in letting the association occupy his hall for so long a time, and on such reasonable terms. The association still has its room

all furnished, over the old postoffice, but their audiences have increased so in size

that not more than half the usual numbers could be accommodated in the old room. Much of their increase in attendance and interest is due to the
